

ITCHING OF SCALP INTOLERABLE

Nearly Wild with Painful, Burning Eruption—Half Her Hair Fell Out and Combing It Was Torture—Feared She Would Be Bald.

IN DESPAIR UNTIL CURED BY CUTICURA

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching, but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would be wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scales. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald.

"Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be rheumatism. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies. Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated. But toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, to have very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one-half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. The first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald.

"This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else. Miss Lillian Brown, R. F. D. 1, Liberty, Mo., Oct. 29, 1909."

ROMANCE ENDS IN A MARRIAGE

The "Ely Daily Mining Examiner" of Ely, Nev., under date of June 4, has the following regarding an Ogden boy and his bride-to-be:

"A love match which began in Los Angeles two years ago will be culminated tonight, when Miss Audrey Telford of this city will be married in Ogden to Harry Trobee, at the home of the groom's parents.

"Mr. Trobee arrived last night to meet his bride, and in the company with the guest of his aunt, Miss Telford, was attending school in Los Angeles, and was staying with the Trobee family at that time.

"Mr. Trobee is employed as a conductor for the Ogden Street Railway company. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Telford, and was born and raised near Osceola, in this county. She is well known among the pioneer residents of the county.

"Miss Telford was greeted with a shower of rice this morning at the depot by a large number of her Ely friends as she boarded the passenger train."

FIRST BIG BET POSTED AT 'FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—In order to protect bettors who may lay wagers on the coming Jeffries-Johnson fight Tex Rickard appointed Tom Corbett official betting commissioner tonight. He authorized him to handle all the money that would be bet upon the chances of the fighters and gave him the exclusive privilege of sending his assistants through the crowd at the ringside on the day of the contest.

TOM FLANAGAN NOW MANAGER

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—That Tom Flanagan, who came to San Francisco to assist Jack Johnson in his training, will act as business manager for the colored champion until after the big fight was the announcement made this afternoon at the beach here. Johnson made the announcement in the following signed statement:

"Tom Flanagan will help me to manage my business affairs until after July 5, 1910. While not a prize fighter, he is one of the best known amateur athletes who has ever competed, and is respected for his honesty and integrity by the press and public the world over. When the Marathon craze hit the east after the Olympic games in London in 1908, Flanagan spent his time and money developing Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian and other famous runners in turning over to the professional ranks in order to secure good competition. I am sorry that I cannot have Flanagan with me for a longer period, but his business interests in Canada require his attention, and he would not consent to absent himself from them any longer."

As a matter of fact, this statement means that Johnson will conduct his own business affairs, and that he will have no manager for the time being. Flanagan and Sig Hart will do the clerical work, but it will be the name of Jack Johnson that will be attached to any and all contracts.

George Little, aside from making threats to acquaintances in the downtown section about stopping the fight, kept himself very quiet. He again attempted to hire Chief of Police Martin interfere, but the latter refused to take any part in the controversy. Johnson served notice on the proprietors of his training camp that he would not remain if Little was allowed around the quarters, and the Chicagoan was conspicuous today by his absence.

Johnson did road work in the morning. He went the usual course of something like twelve miles. It was the program to do gymnasium work in the afternoon, but on account of the cold weather and the fact that he is low in weight, he laid off for the afternoon. Instead of gymnasium work, there was a musical in his private quarters, with "Professor" Burns thumping the piano and Johnson playing the bass viol. He will box again tomorrow.

JEFFRIES MAY CHANGE MANAGERS

BEN LOMOND, Cal., June 6.—Close following the managerial ruction the colored champion's camp there are indications of something brewing in Jeffries' camp. Just what is in the air cannot be learned, but the presence at Ben Lomond of Eddie Graney, the San Francisco referee, and Jack Gleason, one of the promoters of the big fight, has given rise to vague rumors and more or less speculation.

It is true that Graney, who has deferred many a fight, says that he came to Ben Lomond merely to see Jeffries and Corbett in action in their first sparring bout, but it is equally true that this explanation is not being generally accepted around the camp. It is recalled that Graney and Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager, are anything but friendly; in fact, do not make any attempt to disguise their real feeling toward each other, and vague rumors floating about the camp have it that the presence of the "honorary blackbird" does not augur well for Sam Gleason also refuses to go into details regarding the object of his visit, beyond stating that he, like Graney, came here to see Jeffries and "Gentleman Jim" don the gloves for the first time. Jeffries' good humor seems to be the best barometer of conditions in the camp, and if there are any disturbing winds blowing as a result of Gleason's and Graney's visit, they have not yet reflected themselves in the moods of the big fellow.

For the second time the first boxing bout between Jeffries and Corbett suffered a postponement and incidentally caused great disappointment to a large crowd of fight enthusiasts who came down from San Francisco to see the former champion and the undefeated one in action. At the last minute Jeffries decided to await the completion of his outdoor ring before donning the gloves with Corbett.

All the materials for the ring are on hand, but the finishing touches must be put on by an expert carpenter, who came from San Francisco on this evening's train. He expects to have the ring completed in time for Jeffries and Corbett to do their first sparring tomorrow.

Camp visitors were entertained with a warmly contested game of handball between the two ex-champions, which was refereed by Jack Gleason. The two big fellows, to the delight of the crowd, got into a heated argument over a ball which Jeffries claimed was fair and Corbett was equally insistent that it was a foul. The altercation waxed noisy and the game came very near breaking up in a row. Disregarding the referee, who had not seen the ball, hence was loath to rule, Jeffries and Corbett tried to settle it between themselves. Corbett's good nature triumphed and when things were warmest Jeffries suddenly admitted that "Gentleman Jim" had outtalked him and gave in. He was mollified by winning the game.

FUNERAL OF RUBY GEODES

"In the midst of life, we are in death."
Never, perhaps, has the solemn truth in the above quotation been so forcibly exemplified as in the sudden and untimely demise of that sweet singer of Zion—Miss Ruby Geodes—at the home of Prof. Joseph Ballantyne, where, in the pretty studio, among the beautiful flowers, mute expressions of love and friendship, which completely filled the room, her remains lay in state. Among the larger crowd present was an immense harp, which was sent by the Ogden Tabernacle choir, of which she was a favorite member.

The funeral cortege left the house about 2 o'clock, the pall bearers—Earl Pardee, Loney West, George O. Nye, Leo Madison, Jed Ballantyne and Carl Allison, intimate friends and fellow choir members—walking three on each side of the hearse.

The obsequies were held at the Fifth ward meeting house, Bishop H. C. Jacobs presiding.
A most touching, yet comforting, service took place before the service began, when the entire class of Miss Geodes' Sunday school pupils filed past the casket, each little tot placing a bouquet of flowers thereon in memory of their beloved teacher.
The musical program consisted of three beautiful and expressive quartette numbers, "I Need Thee Every Hour," "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "We Shall Meet Beyond the River," touching songs by George O. Nye, Jed Ballantyne, Leo Madison and Carl Allison. Miss Maud Belpap, fellow student of the deceased, although deeply moved, sang "I Shall Know You When I Meet You," which was composed by Miss Geddes, in a most soulful manner. Mrs. Weathela Marriott acted as accompanist.

The invocation was offered by Patriarch George W. Larkins.
Earl Pardee, the first speaker, said that he was glad to have the honor of expressing his feelings at the services and told of the thoughts which came to him while keeping a vigil the night previous over the remains of one whom he had grown to know and love as a sister. He spoke of a conversation which he had with the bereaved father, who told him that, while out driving near his home in Preston, Idaho, he had a premonition of impending trouble, and a voice seemed to call "Papa! papa!" and continued the speaker, "that father's story stayed with me and all the night long I could hear Ruby still calling 'Papa!' and I felt the spirit of the great beyond and knew that all was well with Ruby. He also said that the presence of Ruby's numerous friends should be a source of comfort to the mourners, and hoped that they would so live as to merit a meeting with Ruby in eternity."

Charles J. Ross, manager of the Ogden Tabernacle choir, said in part: "I well remember meeting Ruby when she came here three years ago to purchase her chosen study of music, and since that time have known her as one of the family. She was indeed a rarely beautiful character, a gem of nature which could well be compared to that most precious jewel, her namesake, the Ruby. This jewel, when first brought to light, is found to have in its composition a streak of white, which by the application of excessive heat turns to the same color as the rest of the stone, making it perfect, and again, if placed in an extremely cold place, turns to white. The life of this girl was truly a parallel to first brought with hope and success, and then downhearted at a seeming inferiority to other musicians, and at last, just two weeks before her course of study was to be completed, light-hearted and happy."

"Her thrillingly beautiful voice, myself and all of us will miss, but the depth of her musical nature went beyond singing, and she has left behind a number of commendable compositions, some of which have been sung by her loved associates, the Ogden Tabernacle choir, which will live as a monument to her musical ability."

"Ruby had also an abiding faith in the gospel of Christ, an example of which was shown by her in a fast meeting some time ago, when she sang the beautiful song 'I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go,' saying that the song exemplified her desires in life, and so it has proven, as the last lines of each verse so plainly tell—'She has said what he wanted her to say; has been what he wanted her to be, and has gone where he wanted her to go.' May the peace and comfort of God be with her two fathers and two mothers, for she surely had them in her Idaho home and in the home of Prof. and Mrs. Joseph Ballantyne in this city, and her numerous friends and relatives. Amen."

Elder Thomas A. Shreeve spoke briefly of the good life of the deceased while in Ogden, and told of the passing hours of her life, saying that while he deplored the distressing accident, yet the hand of God was in it, and though her own parents were present to save her, but it was not to be.

President James Waterspoon of the North Weber stake gave a comforting talk, speaking of the joy the bereaved ones should feel in the good life of their loved one, her many friends, the recollections of the beautiful eulogies spoken in the service and in the hope of the life beyond. He also spoke of her welcome in Ogden and of the widespread grief caused by her sudden death.

President Charles F. Middleton of Weber stake said that it was easy to acknowledge the hand of God in the taking away of elderly persons, but it was hard indeed to see the hand of God in similar cases as the present, and that it was hard to see the reason for it. "But," said he, "God has said, 'They are my children, who cannot see my hand in all things,' and Ruby has a mission to fulfill in the other world for which she is fully prepared."

Bishop Jacobs spoke a few words of comfort, and thanked all who had taken part in the services on behalf of the family.

The kindness and care of Prof. Ballantyne and family and those closely associated with them in making a happy environment for Miss Geddes was extolled by all the speakers.

The benediction was pronounced by President John Watson, after which the cortege, with a large number of the choir members and friends following on foot, proceeded to the depot, where the remains were placed on board the Oregon Short Line train.

The casket was accompanied by President Geddes of the Preston, Ida., stake, father of Miss Ruby; Prof. Joseph Ballantyne and family and Miss Maud Belpap, who will sing several of Ruby's compositions at the service in Preston, Ida., where final interment will take place.

CURES S.S.S. OLD SORES

Every old sore comes from some kind of impurity in the blood. It remains an open, discharging place on the flesh because the circulation constantly deposits into the fibres and tissues which surround the spot, the infectious matter with which the blood is contaminated. It is impossible for the sore to heal while the blood is in this impure state. S. S. S. heals old sores because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers; it goes into the circulation and removes the cause from the blood. When the blood has been purified there is no longer any inflammatory impurity or infectious matter to irritate the place, and nature causes a certain and natural healing of the ulcer. It is all well enough to endeavor to cleanse an old sore, or stop the itching, or absorb the discharge, with external applications, but a cure can never be reached in this way, because such applications do not reach the blood where the cause is located. S. S. S. does not simply cause a scab to form over an old sore, but beginning at the bottom it heals the place permanently by building new tissue, and filling the place with firm healthy flesh. S. S. S. is a purely botanical remedy, being made entirely of roots, herbs and barks, each of which has a direct and lasting effect in removing impurities and poisons from the circulation. Old people who have suffered for years with a chronic sore will find S. S. S. a most helpful tonic and system builder in counteracting the debilitating effects of the old ulcer. Special book on Sores and Ulcers free to all who write.
